

WESTERLY

Judge Blodgett presided at the regular session of the superior court for Washington county, which opened Wednesday morning at the court house on Broad street. When the Western calendar was called only two cases were ready. Three cases were passed and will probably be tried at the foot of the Western calendar; five cases were continued to the April session and three others were passed being reported as in process of settlement.

The first jury case was begun at 11:15, the case of Ida M. Handy vs. Ida Arnold. Mrs. Handy brings suit against Ida Arnold of Wickford, alleging alienation of the affections of her husband, Amos B. Handy.

The following jury was empaneled: Charles M. Tallman, Alexander Tucker, Arthur L. Conger and Howard L. Gardner, North Kingstown; James H. Collins and Stuart G. Rogers, Westerly; Irving E. Saunders, William H. Durfee, Elbert Stanton and Edward M. Tillinghast, Hopkinton; William P. Mulligan and Hugh Colgan, Narragansett; Edward M. Tillinghast, Westerly. The jury was sworn by Judge Blodgett.

Mrs. Ida M. Handy, plaintiff in the case, was the first witness called. She testified that she is now living in Bassett, Me., but had lived in Wickford for a time, where her husband was employed. She married Amos B. Handy April 23, 1898. In consequence of a letter received from a Mr. Rose, a garage man in Wickford, her husband left Maine and came to Wickford to work. She and her daughter went to the same place to reside in April, 1916. They boarded in Wickford for four weeks and then went to a house in Wickford where they lived for a year and during that time her husband often went out nights. She thought he went to Mrs. Arnold's house, but she did not see him herself. Mrs. Handy testified that she talked with her husband over the telephone, while he was at Mrs. Arnold's home.

Mrs. Handy said that on several occasions when her husband had come home to her in his clothes had been mended. She related one instance when she saw Mrs. Arnold saw a button on his clothes.

Mrs. Handy told of going back to Maine to live after the trouble had arisen in Wickford. Her husband returned to Wickford in about two months but stayed only a short time. He asked her to come to Providence to live and she testified that she and her daughter went to Providence with the understanding that he would act differently toward her.

Mrs. Handy testified that her husband would take her to the shows week day nights and on Sundays he would go to Wickford. Mrs. Handy and daughter later went to Wickford to reside in the Deacon Reynolds house. It was last September that she talked with Mr. Handy over the telephone while he was at Mrs. Arnold's house. When asked if she had ever seen her husband come from the house she replied that she had not, and when he returned home at night she did not know the direction from which he came.

Mrs. Handy related the circumstances about another trip back to Maine and her husband came about a year afterward. Since that time she has not lived with him. Mrs. Handy told of taking a letter from her husband's pocket which she said came from Mrs. Arnold. There were two such letters, she said. The witness said she put the letters back in her husband's coat pocket. Objections were made to the witness telling the contents of these letters. The witness said that she had never had any conversation with Mrs. Arnold about their affairs.

Mrs. Handy testified that it is eight weeks since her husband has sent her any money, except money sent for their daughter's school ticket. She had supplied the food and Mr. Handy had provided about half of the daughter's clothes. She said she had earned her living by doing washings and house cleaning.

In the afternoon session, Mrs. Handy was cross-examined by Attorney Agard, on her testimony given at the morning session. No further evidence was produced.

William Mosey of Mechanics street suffered a painful bruise and several slight cuts on the face, Wednesday afternoon, when, near the Congregational church on West Broad street, he fell off the handlebars of a bicycle. Mosey was going to the village with a pair of shoes when Harold Jones came along on a bicycle and asked Mosey if he wanted to ride on the bars. He accepted and all went well until the chain slipped, and caused Mosey to be thrown suddenly on the asphalt road. The boy was stunned for a while, and a passing automobile took him to his home where a doctor was summoned. It is thought that he sustained no internal injuries.

Court took a recess at 11:45 o'clock. The choir of Calvary Baptist church under the direction of Miss Jessie M. Utter will present the sacred cantata, "Daughter of Jairus," by Stainer, Monday evening, March 7, at the church on Elm street. The solo parts will be sung by Mrs. Ralph H. Koeb, soprano, Andrew H. Gray, tenor, and Ralph H. Koeb, bass. In addition to the regular choir, the following local singers have been secured to augment the chorus: Mrs. Ralph M. Briggs, Mrs. Beale S. Fowler, Alexander M. Blake, William S. Martin and Raymond H. Hixox.

Prospects for another championship baseball team at the Westerly High school are bright for word was received Wednesday from Barber, last year's star pitcher, that he might be on the mound again this year for the local boys. Barber left Westerly last fall to attend school up in Vermont, where he has relatives. It would appear that baseball competition in these parts is not as keen as it is here, and for that reason, he is seriously considering a return to W. H. S. about May 1. Should he return, it would seem that W. H. S. would have a good chance to win the imaginary interschool pennant of southern Rhode Island and eastern Connecticut.

Trial of the case of state vs. Frank W. Coy Real Estate Company, et al., was continued all day Tuesday before Judge Chester W. Barrows in the superior court Wednesday. Due to the fact that the regular session of the court was held in the superior court rooms, this case was heard in the room of the Third district court. John Bristow, Capt. William F. Saunders, and Thomas McKendrick testified on various phases of the case, and a multitude of maps and filed were produced as evidence by both sides. It is expected that it will be several days before the case can be completed.

A talk by Charles M. Keble of High street on Building Laws for Westerly, featured the March meeting of the Westerly Board of Trade held in the council rooms of the town building Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance. Previous to Mr. Keble's talk routine business was transacted. The proposed revision of two sections of the by-laws which had been laid on the table for a month was unanimously accepted. The changes now make the executive committee smaller and do not require that chairmen of committees be picked from members of the executive committee. Any member of the board in good standing is eligible for head of a committee.

JEWETT CITY

"Aunt Mary" Bishop, so well beloved by the friends of years, and especially by the members of the Social Corner, went home to a well earned reward Tuesday night. For weeks the family and friends have hoped for her recovery from the paralysis with which she had been stricken. She fell first and broke her arm while on a visit in New London, but seemed to have recovered fully, when she was stricken with paralysis at her home at Bishop's, in Plainfield. Mrs. Bishop was of beautiful Christian character, living the kind of daily life which leaves behind her the tenderest of memories.

Her letters to the Social Corner were full of wise, broad-minded Christian counsel. Her own life was consistent with her belief. She was born in McDonough, N. Y., Aug. 5, 1841, the daughter of Patty Palmer and Nelson Tyler. She came to Connecticut in 1843 and taught school in Hanover, also in Lisbon in the Brick schoolhouse. She married Caleb Bishop March 17, 1844. They went to the house at Bishop's Crossing in Plainfield where they lived until Mr. Bishop's death, Oct. 11, 1911. For a short time the family lived in Central Village, but later returned to the homestead.

Mrs. Bishop's hospitality was extended to many societies which frequently picked up on the grounds at her invitation. She was a member of the Packerville church but for several years has been an attendant at Jewett City Baptist church. There she was a member of the Berean circle of the King's Daughters. She was a member of the Central Village W. C. T. U. and Lucy Webb circle. Ladies of the G. A. R., Plainfield Grange and Rebecca chapter, O. E. S., of Moosup.

She is survived by three children, Mrs. Charles W. Phillips of New London, Mrs. Fannie L. Bishop, a member of the Aspinook country club, and William T. Bishop of Plainfield. She leaves three grandchildren in New London and a sister, Mrs. Frances Dunn, in Smyrna, N. Y.

The girl was about 10 years of age, the granddaughter of Charles Cromwell, formerly of this place. Several relatives accompanied the body from Providence.

Albert Duppre fell near the Polish corporation store, as near as can be learned, about 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. He was unconscious when someone unknown to the police dragged him around back of the building and left him lying in the alley. Shortly before 8 o'clock he was discovered by a man who notified Officer Dolan. Several cuts about the head were found and Dr. J. H. McLaughlin was called. A general cleanup of Railroad avenue is promised. This case, as well as two others, will be investigated.

Miss Kate Bourne Colver, only daughter of the late Jonathan and Sarah Colver, died at the family home at the submarine base Monday afternoon, Feb. 28, at 4:45 o'clock after a critical illness of some weeks. At one time Miss Colver was thought to be convalescing but it proved only temporary.

In her girlhood she mingled with the Methodist Episcopal church of the village and was ever untiring in her zeal and work for the church and its societies. She was president of the Ladies' Aid society, an office held by her since the organization of the society 18 years ago. She was treasurer of the local auxiliary of the Woman's Home Missionary society from its organization 15 years ago, and was one of the charter members of the Epworth League of the church.

Miss Colver was devoted to all good work. Her first thought was for others and she was beloved by a large circle of relatives and friends who are greatly saddened at her passing. She is survived by one brother, Courtland E. Colver, and Mrs. S. C. Colver, the latter the children, Courtland E. Jr., Helen Louise and Margaret E. Colver.

In the M. E. church at the Sunday morning service, Rev. G. H. Wright spoke from Matthew 11:28, "Come ye that be weary, Take My Yoke Upon You. Assistant Superintendent Dudley C. Perkins conducted the Sunday school session. At the Epworth League evening service with Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins leader, the topic was Mission Study—God's Providence in Agriculture. Special music was given by a quartet, Misses Mary and Madeleine Birch, Rev. J. W. Carter and David Carter. Miss Jennie G. Perkins being at the piano.

Mrs. A. L. Morgan of the submarine base left Tuesday to spend a few days with Mr. Morgan's parents in Philadelphia, before having on Saturday to join her husband, A. C. Morgan, C. Y. U. S. S. Rainbow, at San Pedro, California. Mr. Morgan was attached to the base during the entire period of the year, and was detached last autumn.

Why Some Coffee Always Brings a Smile

Does your coffee at your breakfast or dinner table mean an anticipated moment in your day? Does it bring a big smile in every single sip? It will—if it's La Touraine.

Millions Now Smile

Once you have tasted real coffee flavor—once you have known the aroma of fresh, finely blended, perfectly roasted La Touraine—you will never want any other. The millions of users of La Touraine coffee have named it "The Coffee of Good Taste," because it always makes coffee of which you can be proud.

A New Flavor to Many in Coffee

Many people who could pay any price for coffee prefer La Touraine because its special snap seems a new thing in coffee flavor. La Touraine users often say it is coffee plus. But

La Touraine is just good coffee—more carefully selected, more painstakingly blended, more expertly roasted, because of the La Touraine Formula.

What the Formula Means

The secret of the "something" which La Touraine has, and you have always looked for in coffee, lies in the La Touraine Formula. According to this famous formula, certain coffees—the finest types of their kind—are carefully chosen from world-wide markets. They are always the same mature, high-grade beans, whatever it may cost us to get them! These are blended in a special way that combines the finest flavor of each, and roasted with the care a chef would lavish on a matchless dish. The La Touraine Formula is the real reason for La Touraine's goodness.

Insist on the La Touraine Package

Do not accept La Touraine unless it is in the La Touraine package. Buy it in the package marked "bean" and have your grocer grind it fresh for you. You will then get the utmost flavor in your cup.
